The Russo-Japanese war, the bloodlest of modern times, is ended, the commission at Portsmouth having reached a basis of peace and ordered the framing of a treaty. Japan abandons all claim for indemnity, and agrees to cede the north half of Saghalin island back to Russia at a figure to be deermined by an impartial commission. It is expected that the treaty will be complete by the end of the week. The congratulations of the world are pouring in upon President Roosevelt, to whose strenuous efforts the happy outcome is entirely due.

The yellow fever situation in New Orleans seems to be fairly under control by the United States authorities, and attention will probably soon turn to the state of Louisiana, where the scourge is increasing at an alarming rate. September is considered the worst month in the year for the disease and the situation is very grave, with danger of the general spread of the disease in surrounding states.

Mexico is prospering under the gold standard, and China is preparing to adopt the same system. Free silver has no longer any standing save in the columns of a few impractical and un. read so-called newspapers.

Will it "Hurt Business?"

"It will hurt business," we are told, to close the saloons. It is in order to inquire of those who make the claim how and why it will hurt business. It is the experience of business men that it does the reverse. It was so proven in this town in June, 1904. It has been so proven in many towns in many localities. It was the good fortune of the writer at one time to live in a town in Nebraska where intoxicants were not sold. And the law was enforced. too. In a residence covering four years he saw just one drunk man in townand he came to town drunk-and left sober. Oh, it was dry, so far as liquors was concerned.

Did it burt business? Yes. The constable and the sheriff were almost unknown in the place: there was no business for them. The local courts found business yery slack, too-searcely enough doing to keep the bearings from rusting. But the dry goods man and the groceryman, the butcher and the baker, the furniture dealer and the implement man, the mechanic and the laborer found enough doing to keep them busy and prosperous. Therewere four much larger towns on the line of rallroad, a short line between Sioux City and Omaha, but traveling salesmen said they sold more goods of the better class in the town of Lyons, the town in question, than in any other 1995, visc.

Joseph H. Birdwell, of Codar Creek, Mo., H. E. town on the line, and never had any trouble with collections. A bad debt was unknown. Men did not decrease their earning power by a habit which always lowers effective ability, and always had money to pay for the necessities, and many of the luxuries of life, for the wives and babies. A man who from his income by farming, carpentry. or ordinary labor, takes the money to pay for drink cannot procure luxuries for his family, and too often, as is within the knowledge of many who read these lines, he must curtail the necessaries. A man cannot burn his money and have it to supply his needs and the needs of those dependent upon him. Neither can be spend it for that which is not meat nor bread and have it to spend for food and clothing.

It is a matter within the knowledge of nine out of ten of all who will read this article that most of the patrons of the average saloon are men who depend upon their hands for the means of livelihood, and that all they can earn is not too much to provide for the comfort of their families. If they drink their families do without the things needful to make life pleasant, and the merchant misses the sale of the goods those families would otherwise consume. The proposition is one of plain. business, so far as the merchant is concerned, and if he will consider it from a business point of view he can reach but one conclusion, a conclusion indicated by reason and backed by experience, that the man who spends his money for liquor cannot spend it for groceries, drugs, hardware, dry goods, implements, clothing, books, musical instruments, or the hundreds of things from which the business men of the community make their legitimate profits while benefiting their patrons.

Ob, yes! it will hurt business, butit will hurt no business upon which the prosperity or the general welfare of the community depends in any measure, aud-it will hort no business that ought to be protected by the community.

I used to jump out of my father's barn loft onto the ground, and in so doing I bruised my feet. They became very sore. My folks applied such home remedies as their best judgment suggested, but with no good effect. My father then took me to our family physician, who said it was necessary to take off one of my toes, which he did. This proved of no avail in arresting the disease. The trouble increased, and after six years of constant and intense suffering I became unable to wear shoes. I then crippled about in moccasins for about
